

ABSTRACT

A method is provided for automatic digital audio mixing of at least two digital audio files. The method comprises reading samples from the digital audio files, processing the samples to determine a scale factor for each of the files, 5 applying the scale factors to the samples of each of their corresponding files, and summing the scaled samples to create a single digital audio output file.